Other change The purpose of this change sheet is to request clearance for reweighting the Stafford borrowing in the National Postsecondary Student Aid Study (NPSAS) by using net disbursements, which more accurately reflect the amount of money students are actually borrowing, instead of the previously used gross loan commitments collected by the Department of Education. For 2007-2008 the overall difference between these two measures, gross and net, is about 18 percent, or $10 billion. NPSAS 2008 is being conducted to meet the continuing need for national-level data about significant financial aid issues for students enrolling in postsecondary education. Information about financial aid policies and postsecondary affordability is critical to policymakers who determine the need analysis formulas for Pell Grants, maximum amounts for student loans, and other need-based federal programs.
